How is it that on the same slip and fall claim, one expert opines the floor is safe for ambulation, and another states the floor is slippery and caused the fall? The answer is not so obvious, but the scenario is very common, creating liability when there may be none.

Experts should be trusted, but at times, even they are unknowingly in the dark.

Our 2024 seminar will help attendees discover how to overcome conflicting and confusing standards, antiquated and poorly designed tools of the trade, and vested interests that have created our current battle-of-the-experts climate. This two-day comprehensive certification program will provide unparalleled insight and training to avoid junk science and ensure case handling is fully defensible and can withstand the rigors of litigation.

We greatly appreciate your interest in supporting this course.
